

Spectral domain Optical Coherence Tomography as the Profilometric Tool for Examination of the Environmental Influence on Paintings on Canvas

Tomasz Bajraszewski¹, Iwona Gorczyńska¹, Bogumiła Rouba², Piotr Targowski¹

¹ Institute of Physics, Nicolaus Copernicus University, ul. Grudziądzka 5, 87-100 Toruń, Poland

E-mail: encore@phys.uni.torun.pl

² Institute for the Study, Restoration and Conservation of Cultural Heritage, Nicolaus Copernicus University, ul. Gagarina 9, 87-100 Toruń, Poland

E-mail: brouba@art.uni.torun.pl

Abstract. The changes of surface profile of oil paintings on canvas caused by rapid humidity are examined by spectral OCT. The speed, resolution, and long time stability of SOCT make this technique appropriate for quantitative determination of surface profile changes.